MORE THAN READING, 'RITING, 'RITHMATIC

The summer is almost over for children heading to Department of Defense Dependents Schools for the 2006-2007 year. Looking back, we had a great summer filled with family vacations, soccer excitement, and hot temperatures. The weather has turned cooler possibly signaling that summer is over.

Kids, do not stress out yet. You still have a couple of days until you have to be back at school. So continue to sleep in and enjoy your free time lying around the house driving your parents crazy.

To help you get ready for your return to school, we have packed this edition with school information, including open house dates and a great sports program.

Parents, enjoy your new freedom as your kids return to school on Monday.

Lt. Col. Timothy Wulff
Commander
U.S. Army
Garrison Wiesbaden

PUNT, PASS AND KICK

The National Football League's Punt, Pass and Kick program returns to Wiesbaden Sept. 5-8 at the mudflats in Hainerberg Housing. The program is a national skills competition for boys and girls between the ages of 8 -15 to compete separately against their peers. PPK is conducted as a partnership between U.S. Army Garrison Wiesbaden Child and Youth Services and Gen. H.H. Arnold High School. Wiesbaden hosts the only PPK in U.S. Army Europe, and had more than 120 participants in Wiesbaden last year.

PPK was established in 1961 for boys and has grown every year since then. The current PPK has girls and boys in four separate age divisions (8-9, 10-11, 12-13, and 14-15) compete against each other in punting, passing and place kicking in a fun and engaging forum. The program is free and open to every youngster who wants to participate!

More than four million boys and girls from around the United States take part in the NFL PPK competition every year making it one of the world's largest youth sports participation programs.

Wiesbaden host the event over a four-day period to ensure everyone who would like to has an opportunity to participate. Winners from each age and gender division will be awarded trophies and other prizes at the half time of a Gen. H.H. Arnold High School football home game.

Protect your tires

There has been an increase in reports of tires allegedly punctured by the tire shredders or "tiger teeth" installations installed for force protection purposes. These traffic control devices are designed to shred and instantly deflate the tires of cars going the wrong direction. The teeth point away from the intended direction of travel and are designed to retract into the ground if crossed in the intended direction. These devices can be safely crossed if the driver obeys the posted warning and speed limit signs, proceeds straight ahead and does not back up or turn the wheel. In many, if not all, of the instances of punctured tires, the driver was attempting to drive to one side of the shredder to keep at least one tire from crossing the shredder. This causes contact with the teeth or tines on the pointed end, resulting in punctures. The teeth on these devices are safely lowered by the weight of the tire provided the tire crosses perpendicular to the shredder. For information, contact the Military Police Station or the Wiesbaden Claims Office.

VFW meeting

Wiesbaden's Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 27 meets the second Thursday of the month at the Community Activity Center. The social meeting is from 5-7 p.m. in the Victory Point Bar, and the business meeting is at 7 p.m. in the upstairs conference room. All VFW members or Required countries include Austria, Greece, Spain, Turkey and Russia. To apply, you'll need an application form (available at your driver's testing station), a valid U.S. Forces driver's license, an ID card or U.S. passport, and a passport photograph in civilian dress. The international permit costs €13-€30 and is valid for three years, or until your license expires. Call the Driver's Testing Station at mil 334-2492 or civ (06134) 604-492.

BOMBS ARE NO LAUGHING MATTER

U.S. Army, Europe leaders are making it crystal clear that people making fake bomb threats will be punished.

“Folks need to know this is not funny; it wastes time and money,” said Lt. Col. Carol McKinney with the U. S. Army, Europe provost marshal office.

Service members who pull such stunts will be charged with communicating a threat or bomb threat, under Article 134 of the Uniformed Code of Military Justice, and could face further punishment by individual commanders, she said.

And civilians will be charged by host-nation police with communicating a threat, McKinney said.

Plus all persons involved will be taken into custody.

“This is not a (sudden) crackdown,” McKinney said. “It’s always been taken seriously.”

The most recent incident occurred July 27 in Heidelberg during a force protection drill, which confused some participants into thinking a fake bomb threat was part of an exercise. It wasn’t, and the perpetrator was detained.

With apprehension comes a price.

Offenders in Germany, for example, can expect to pay at least 2,000 euros – the fine emergency responders charge when answering self-caused emergencies, McKinney said.

Additionally, civilians can be barred from the military installation and returned stateside. And if the offender is a military family member, he or she also can be returned stateside.

Of the last four incidents in Heidelberg, one culprit was a Soldier and the others were family members or civilian employees, McKinney said, adding that diversity among the offenders makes it harder to decipher why people commit such acts.

“It seems people just do it to do it,” McKinney said.

What they do have in common, she noted, “is wasting (responders’) time, keeping them from other real important emergencies.”

The fake bomb threat is a recurring trend in military installations worldwide. Based on recent talks with the Army’s Force Protection Anti-Terrorism Organization, McKinney said such incidents are on the increase in the states.

No matter where and how often bomb threats occur, authorities take the incidents seriously and will charge offenders accordingly, McKinney said. (Courtesy of Sgt. Aimee Millham, USARUER Public Affairs)

FAMILY CHILD CARE

The USAG Wiesbaden Family Child Care program is currently promoting FCCOnline, a web-based tool in which each FCC provider has created her own program website. Parents seeking home-based child care are encouraged to visit the Central Enrollment office and ask to be logged onto the site. Parents can view each providers profile, family and program photos and vacancy status, and then indicate to CER which providers they would like to interview. They can view the main FCCOnline profile from their own computers by logging on to: www.ArmyFCC.com, scrolling down to USAG Wiesbaden and clicking submit. Questions may be submitted through email by clicking on FCCinfo@104asg.army.mil at the bottom of the profile page.

Family Child Care offers small, multi-age group care in a home environment. Providers, like center-based caregivers, are credentialed child-care specialists. They have background checks, complete 40 hours of initial training, health assessments and have their homes inspected for fire, safety and health standards prior to receiving FCC certification. Providers receive on-going training, support, monitoring, and unannounced inspections. Training and educational opportunities can lead to a Child Development Associate (CDA) and have their homes accredited by the National Association of Family Child Care (NAFCC).
